HERRINGBONE WILD The Herringbone pattern is an arrangement of blocks used since the antiquity in floor tilings and road pavements as well as in textiles of all sorts. This hand tufted pile and loop rug, with “wild” pile heights, offers a lush, natural touch to a room. The pile is 70 mm high, and the material is composed of 70% hard twisted worsted New Zeeland wool and 30% twisted linen. The colour options are the same as for our Camelia collection.
